

Who are we?

A group of farmers in the Sheboygan river basin area that came together to test and explore farming strategies that improve soil health, allow greater farming efficiency, sustain profitability AND lessen the impact on the environment.

OUR GOAL: Improve water quality in the Sheboygan River Basin

How we'll get there:

- Identify the most vulnerable fields that have potential to be improved with on farm conservation methods.
- Commit to several years of action on individual fields to better show a shift in soil health and crop sustainability.
- Measure and track soil health of fields that will act as test/demo sites
- Hold an annual field day to exhibit improvements, new techniques and to learn from one another.
- Work with the non-farming community to reach water quality goals and enhance the sense of community between rural and urban residents in the basin.

Become an SRPF Member! Benefits include networking with a robust and progressive agricultural community, eligibility for SRPF's cost-share programs and numerous learning opportunities, such as meetings and field days, offered throughout the year. Membership cost is $50 per farm per year and goes toward SRPF programs.
